

The Super Awesome Micro Project Prospectus

The reason you are receiving this PDF - is because you expressed interest in the tweet below.

The project is one of those things that is cool, but in reality can only be done once. In some ways it is a stunt, but with meaning. It has important implications for technology and the world it is creating. For all those involved it will bring credibility. For the public I am certain it will create deep curiosity.

Why Crowd Fund? This project will cost around $25,000 - It is just a little too costly to do on my own without any expected revenue as a result. But all those involved will benefit from the personal branding via having their names against it. It will also help it spread further.

The Project: We are building something that has not been built before. It is high tech, eco friendly, quirky, strange and very, very cool. Those involved can come to the launch party. An official page of 'patrons' will be developed on a .com address so the world will know those who made it a reality. We will launch it to the world via a video - a mini doco. But it will be real. People can come, see and touch it.

Exact Details: If you are prepared to put in $500 then you can call me directly on +61 438 779566 for the final information verbally. I will not publish the details.

Transparency: I will share cost plans, details and expenditure with those who invest in a private wiki as the project is implemented. Any excess funds will be redistributed pro rata. There may also be extra funds needed if budgets blow out.

The Benefits: Prepare for global awareness of this project in days after it has been completed. We've enlisted 'creative types' to ensure this. Your association will be the most interesting thing on your career or entrepreneurial hacker techie CV.

How to Participate: Place $500 into my PayPal account on email: stevesammartino@optusnet.com.au - *If sufficient funds are not raised, the money (exc any PayPal fees will be returned). Once $25,000 is reached the project will be closed to the public.

Financials: There will be NO fiscal return on this. Regard it as a techie / hacker community project where committed funds are philanthropic in nature. This project has high risk and may fail.
